Kilkee Thalassotherapy Centre is a family run health spa situated in one of Ireland's oldest holiday resorts, Kilkee, Co. Clare.

The centre has been recognised over the years for its very high standards and in 2004 was awarded 'Best Day Spa' in Ireland by the Irish Beauty Professional Association.

Other awards include; Top 5 in the Residential Spa's in Ireland in 2003

Top 5 in the Day Spa's in Ireland in 2005.

The centre offers traditional seaweed baths, seaweed body wraps, hydrotherapy, massage, marine based facials, sauna/steamrooms, beauty treatments and sun bed.

The centre is located just 100 metres from Kilkee's EU Blue Flag beach.

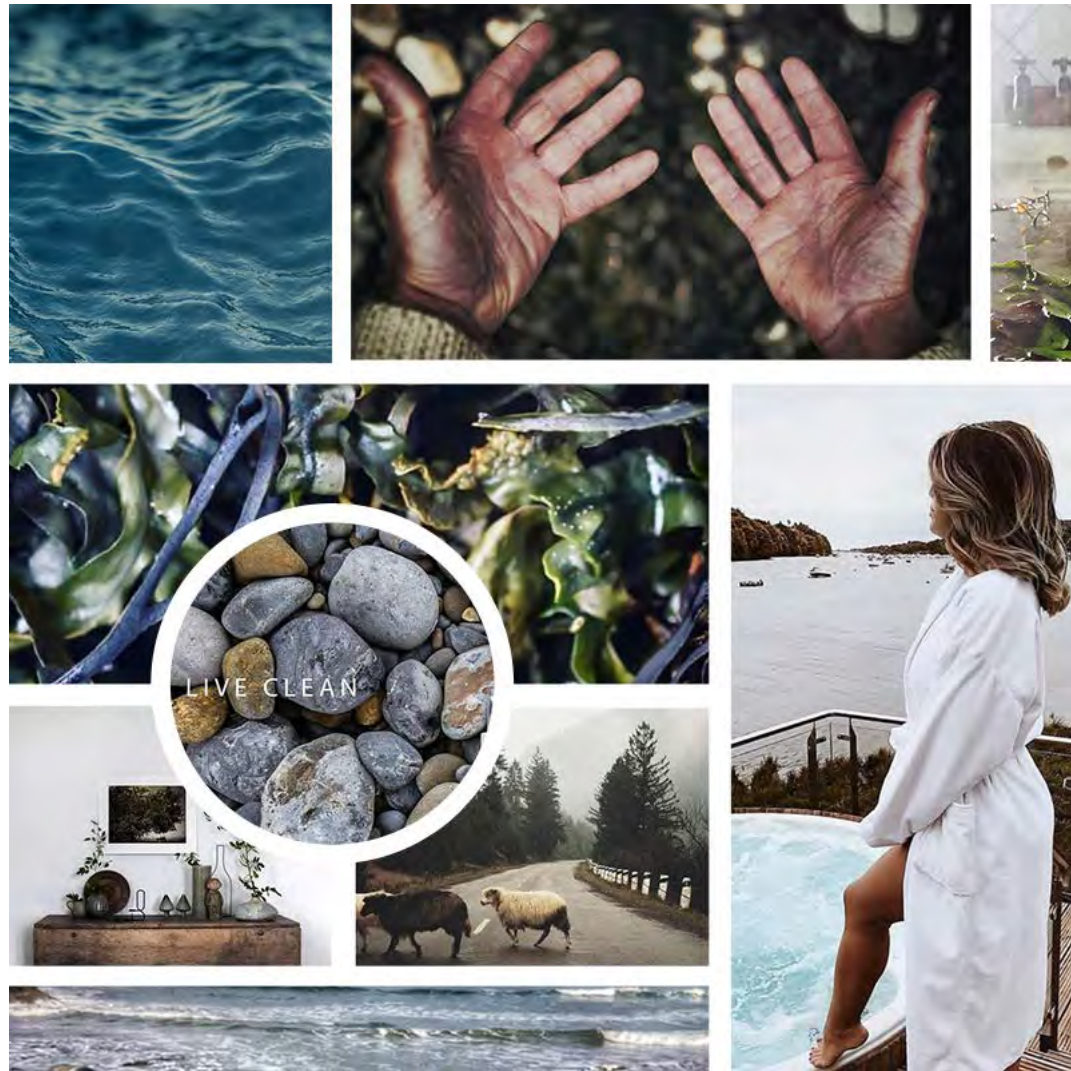

Kilkee Thalassotherapy Centre offers a range of specialised treatments for both men and women to relax, rejuvenate and re-balance the body.

Bad design examples :

Figure ground phenomenon is not working here, as well as the similarity/symmetry of the background which is unnecessary and confusing.

TREATMENT

Thalasso comes from the Greek word meaning 'sea' and 'therapy' to heal.

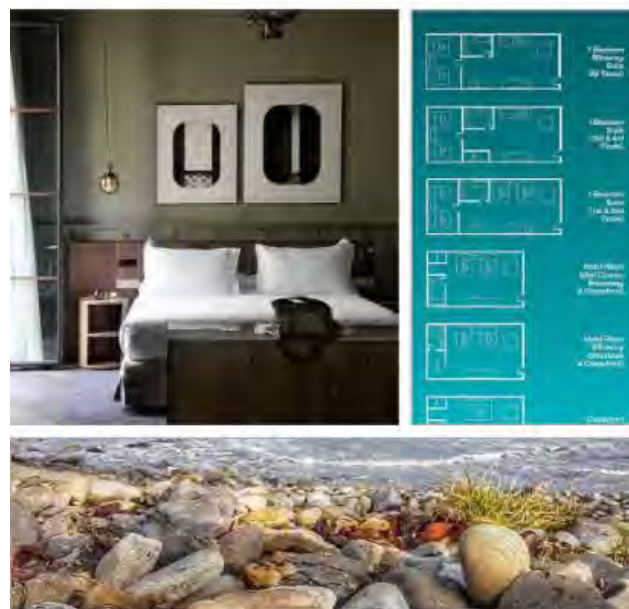

For hundreds of years people have been coming to the sea to find a sense of well being and balance. The healing power of both seawater and algae has long been recognised down the years for their therapeutic effect on both mind and body.

What makes Kilkee Thalassotherapy Centre truly unique is the combination of traditional natural seaweed baths and modern spa treatments.

The spa specialises in marine based treatments, using the abundant natural resources around us; like natural seaweed and heated seawater.

Usability tests / re-designed Kilkee website

<https://xd.adobe.com/view/5a667abf-c78c-4ed7-a02f-1d723b1f3b96/>

For our 5 second test, we tested our desktop front page on 24 persons with different ages, sex and backgrounds, and draw conclusions based on the most common answers.

What is the name of the page?

What can you do on this page?

Do you want to continue on this page?

What kind of services does the website offer you?

Which award did the spa win?

Conclusion:

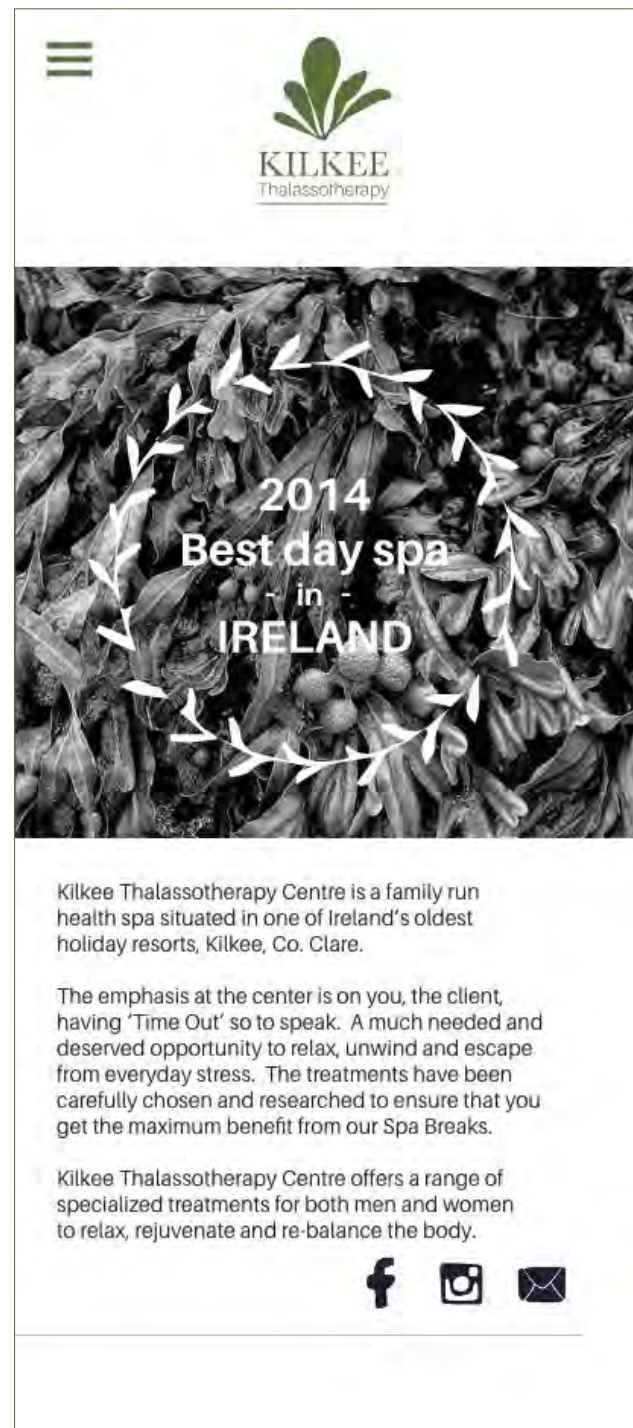

The name of the page is easy to identify, could be identified easily by all of the users

The purpose of the page is understandable, but takes a couple of seconds to figure out.

Most of the participants wanted to stay on the page, if they wanted to have a spa experience.

The services offered are clear and easily understandable

The stamp doesn't pop into your face, so you have to spend time decoding it.

For our Trunk test we interviewed 3 people from different sex and nationalities and asked them a few questions, here are their answers :

What is this page about?

What navigation options do you have there?

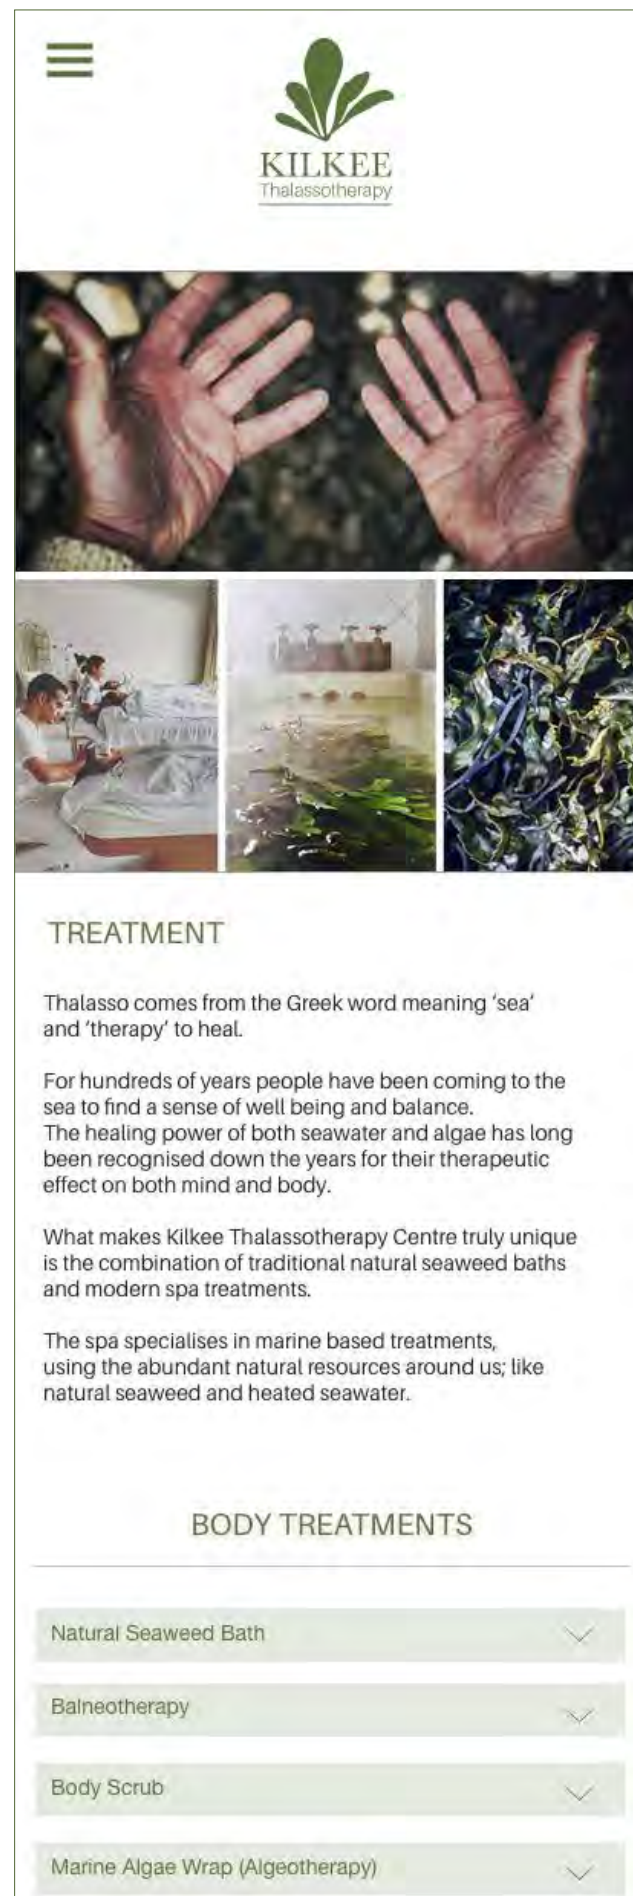

If you want a body massage – where would you go?

If you have to contact the Spa – what would you do?

Is there anything that you would change?

Lana age 23

1. It is about a Spa or a health center.
2. Home, Stay, Treatments, Contact
3. I would choose the treatments and then body treatments.
4. I would definitely go to the contact section.
5. Not really. I liked the treatment section very much. It is very well organized.

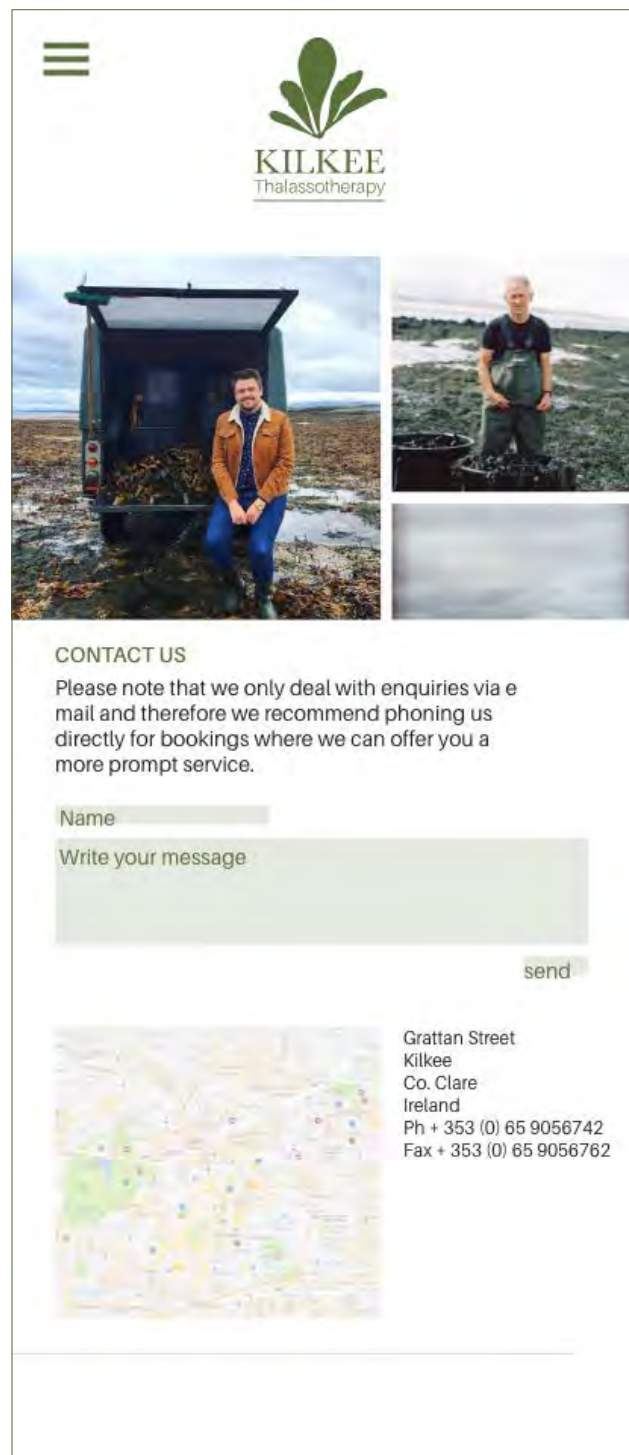

Sebastian age 21

1. It is about a spa where you can stay like in a hotel.
2. Home, Stay, Treatments, Contact
3. I would click on the treatments and find them there.
4. Contact menu
5. I would delete the social media icons from the home page and put them on the contact page.

Joao age 23

1. This is like a hotel where you can have treatments and relax.
2. Home, Stay, Treatments, Contact
3. Body treatments within treatments
4. click contact in the menu bar
5. No and I like the little icons in the stay section they are cool!

Expert review / Cognitive walkthrough

Will the user try to achieve the right effect?

When we planned the design of the page, we had a focus on mainly three things:

For it to be calm, cosy, warm atmosphere, so you have the same atmosphere as when you go to the spa.

With the earthy colors and simple design we managed to keep a traditional and natural feeling as the spa itself.

Will the user notice that the correct action is available?

Because we tried to keep the menu as simple as possible, by reducing the content and the number of options.

Will the user associate the correct action with the effect to be achieved?

Yes, everything is easily accessible. Few options keep it simple.

If the correct action is performed, will the user see that progress is being made toward solution of the task?

According to our previous research - YES.
